

Let us then approach the throne of grace with confidence, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help us in our time of need.

REFLECTIONS ON TODAY'S GOSPEL GOSPEL: LUKE 1:1-4; 4:14-21 "Today this Scripture passage is fulfilled in your hearing."

Jesus surrounds himself with no air of mystery in Luke's story. He chooses the prophecy about the servant of the Lord quite deliberately to explain who he is. He is the anointed one, the Messiah. He comes with good news for the poor, the sick, the captive. He comes to bring jubilee, the year of favor in which all debts are revoked and people can begin fresh and free. He is liberation from the ancient debt of sin.

Any questions?

Well, as we know, Nazareth is not exactly pleased to have this Scripture fulfilled in their hearing. After all, they know Jesus, son of Mary and Joseph, a local boy who now thinks he is the answer to all their prayers. If he had come down from the city, perhaps, some big name from Jerusalem, they might have been more receptive. A position with the Sanhedrin or some credentials might have seen him further. But he is nobody, really. He is one of them.

Questions for Reflection

How have you experienced the changes in the sacrament of forgiveness? Is this a sacrament you celebrate, fear or avoid?

Is there dissension about the ways of the church in your family? Parish? How do you resolve the differences?

Imagine that this year has been declared a year of jubilee, and you can begin again, fresh and free. How will this freedom change your life?

Action Response

Jesus has consecrated all of time as an eternal season of jubilee in which the debt of sin is canceled and we are free. Celebrate your freedom in the sacrament of reconciliation. Forgive those who have trespassed against you. Ask for forgiveness from those you have wronged. Be free.
